FOCUS ON PERSONNEL: REGGIE BARTOLO ADMINISTRATOR, MALTA UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING

Reggie Bartolo attended the Seminary in Floriana for six years, until he obtained his 'O' and 'A' certificates and his Matriculation in Maltese and Religion. His first job was with a foreign printing press and publisher in 1967, where he worked as a Proof-Reader and Book Designer.

Following this, he started working with Malta University Services twenty years ago (in 1992), when Malta University Publishers began functioning. His present role at Malta University Publishing is administrator, as well as Book-Designer for the Journal of Mediterranean Studies (Mediterranean Institute at the University of Malta) and also for Malta University Publishing.

Ever since its inception, Malta University Publishing has been producing and selling scholarly works and journals of research relevant to any branch of studies at the University of Malta. It has produced and continues to produce books that do credit to Malta's rich cultural heritage. It also publishes and sells textbooks that are on the syllabus for the matriculation exams and the University.

"A room without books is like a body without a soul."
~ Marcus Tullius Cicero
